Specification:

With an inflatable water park, safety should be a concern for parents because it does combine water and fun. It is also designed for kids who are young and are perhaps unable to swim. However, parents should consider it for their children because the inflatable plastic does not create a deep pool in any area. It is made of a heavy duty plastic that will resist punctures and loss of air. There are safety nets to ensure children do not fall off of the highest areas of the bounce house water play area. Overall, there is very little risk of children sustaining an injury while they are having fun and this is great news for parents.
